"Let your request be made known..."

I know what I should do, I know how I should feel, I know what I should believe but in the heat of the moment, knowing just isn't enough. I often relate to the father of the boy before Jesus who said: "I do believe; help my unbelief." ^{Mark 9:24}. At such times, it feels like failure. Not that I have violated some commandment or failed to act but anxieties can feel so overwhelming in the crucible of life. Well meaning, simplistic encouragements from brothers can feel like sharp arrows or fiery coals. Still, we are those who do not give up, do not quit and stay the course.

Of all of God's people who at times struggled emotionally in the midst of seeking to do the right thing, Paul knows those feelings of angst and frustration. A light reading of his letters or the book of Acts and you might miss it. But see how even the Lord came to Paul in a vision to tell him "do not be afraid any longer" ^{Acts 18:8}. Those words of strength came to Paul who by now had scars reminding him of so many failed attempts to convince his own people to change. Jesus sees victory not in the manipulation of events but in the courage and faith that chooses what is needed regardless.

When Paul writes the Philippians (from prison), he can fully understand their fears and doubts. We have preconceived convictions concerning actions and results. But it is not for me to stop the rain or create the flood. I can speak to the winds of life but it was Jesus who calmed the sea. Paul writes to a people who see the world events or maybe just storms of their own personal lives and they feel broken and inadequate. Philippians is a letter of powerful encouragement to a people who just don't know what to do next. It isn't a lack of faith but a faith with trembling. They need to just know what to do.

"Be anxious for nothing, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God. And the peace of God, which surpasses all comprehension, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus." ^{Phil. 4:6-7}.

It is not a magic formula or secret incantation to manipulate the fabric of the universe but take your words, your anxieties, your world challenges to God. Prayer, petitions (wants) accompanied by thanksgiving are brought to God. Paul's promise is not that I get what I want or that people or things change as I would hope them to be, but "the peace of God which is beyond my understanding will enter my heart and mind through Jesus" In the end, life is not mine to manipulate and we do live in a fallen world. What I can do is keep doing what I need but allow my heart to trust God's divine protection of the soul, my soul. We lift up, we protect, we stand in the gap, we love and we persuade but God is the only God. Let God be God and let us trust his providence, his wisdom and his choices as he intervenes in ways we may never understand.

I don't know why one person has the blessings of Solomon and another the struggles of Job. The word "fairness" doesn't seem to fit the world you and I inhabit. But when we take our anxieties to God's throne with thanksgiving, we determine to trust God's ultimate choices. Go back and read Paul's opening words to this anxious group of believers: "For I am confident of this very thing, that He who began a good work in you will perfect it until the day of Christ Jesus." ^{Phil. 1:6}. Yes, life is often incomprehensible. To trust in God is not to get what I judge proper but to know that peace for my soul is not in the absence of storms but peace for the soul is in the presence of Jesus in the storm. Quit thinking that you are the anchor of hope or failure. "let your request be made known to God" He is the God of peace.

It is not a magic formula or secret incantation to manipulate the fabric of the universe but take your words, your anxieties, your world challenges to God. Prayer, petitions (wants) accompanied by thanksgiving are brought to God. Paul's promise is not that I get what I want or that people or things change as I would hope them to be, but "the peace of God which is beyond my understanding will enter my heart and mind through Jesus" In the end, life is not mine to manipulate and we do live in a fallen world. What I can do is keep doing what I need but allow my heart to trust God's divine protection of the soul, my soul. We lift up, we protect, we stand in the gap, we love and we persuade but God is the only God. Let God be God and let us trust his providence, his wisdom and his choices as he intervenes in ways we may never understand.

I don't know why one person has the blessings of Solomon and another the struggles of Job. The word "fairness" doesn't seem to fit the world you and I inhabit. But when we take our anxieties to God's throne with thanksgiving, we determine to trust God's ultimate choices. Go back and read Paul's opening words to this anxious group of believers: "For I am confident of this very thing, that He who began a good work in you will perfect it until the day of Christ Jesus." Phil. 1:6. Yes, life is often incomprehensible. To trust in God is not to get what I judge proper but to know that peace for my soul is not in the absence of storms but peace for the soul is in the presence of Jesus in the storm. Quit thinking that you are the anchor of hope or failure. "let your request be made known to God" He is the God of peace.

"Let your request be made known..."

I know what I should do, I know how I should feel, I know what I should believe but in the heat of the moment, knowing just isn't enough. I often relate to the father of the boy before Jesus who said: "I do believe; help my unbelief." Mark 9:24. At such times, it feels like failure. Not that I have violated some commandment or failed to act but anxieties can feel so overwhelming in the crucible of life. Well meaning, simplistic encouragements from brothers can feel like sharp arrows or fiery coals. Still, we are those who do not give up, do not quit and stay the course.

Of all of God's people who at times struggled emotionally in the midst of seeking to do the right thing, Paul knows those feelings of angst and frustration. A light reading of his letters or the book of Acts and you might miss it. But see how even the Lord came to Paul in a vision to tell him "do not be afraid any longer" Acts 18:8. Those words of strength came to Paul who by now had scars reminding him of so many failed attempts to convince his own people to change. Jesus sees victory not in the manipulation of events but in the courage and faith that chooses what is needed regardless.

When Paul writes the Philippians (from prison), he can fully understand their fears and doubts. We have preconceived convictions concerning actions and results. But it is not for me to stop the rain or create the flood. I can speak to the winds of life but it was Jesus who calmed the sea. Paul writes to a people who see the world events or maybe just storms of their own personal lives and they feel broken and inadequate. Philippians is a letter of powerful encouragement to a people who just don't know what to do next. It isn't a lack of faith but a faith with trembling. They need to just know what to do.

"Be anxious for nothing, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God. And the peace of God, which surpasses all comprehension, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus." Phil. 4:6-7.

I know what I should do, I know how I should feel, I know what I should believe but in the heat of the moment, knowing just isn't enough. I often relate to the father of the boy before Jesus who said: "I do believe; help my unbelief." Mark 9:24. At such times, it feels like failure. Not that I have violated some commandment or failed to act but anxieties can feel so overwhelming in the crucible of life. Well meaning, simplistic encouragements from brothers can feel like sharp arrows or fiery coals. Still, we are those who do not give up, do not quit and stay the course.

Of all of God's people who at times struggled emotionally in the midst of seeking to do the right thing, Paul knows those feelings of angst and frustration. A light reading of his letters or the book of Acts and you might miss it. But see how even the Lord came to Paul in a vision to tell him "do not be afraid any longer" Acts 18:8. Those words of strength came to Paul who by now had scars reminding him of so many failed attempts to convince his own people to change. Jesus sees victory not in the manipulation of events but in the courage and faith that chooses what is needed regardless.

When Paul writes the Philippians (from prison), he can fully understand their fears and doubts. We have preconceived convictions concerning actions and results. But it is not for me to stop the rain or create the flood. I can speak to the winds of life but it was Jesus who calmed the sea. Paul writes to a people who see the world events or maybe just storms of their own personal lives and they feel broken and inadequate. Philippians is a letter of powerful encouragement to a people who just don't know what to do next. It isn't a lack of faith but a faith with trembling. They need to just know what to do.

"Be anxious for nothing, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God. And the peace of God, which surpasses all comprehension, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus." Phil. 4:6-7.

It is not a magic formula or secret incantation to manipulate the fabric of the universe but take your words, your anxieties, your world challenges to God. Prayer, petitions (wants) accompanied by thanksgiving are brought to God. Paul's promise is not that I get what I want or that people or things change as I would hope them to be, but "the peace of God which is beyond my understanding will enter my heart and mind through Jesus" In the end, life is not mine to manipulate and we do live in a fallen world. What I can do is keep doing what I need but allow my heart to trust God's divine protection of the soul, my soul. We lift up, we protect, we stand in the gap, we love and we persuade but God is the only God. Let God be God and let us trust his providence, his wisdom and his choices as he intervenes in ways we may never understand.

I don't know why one person has the blessings of Solomon and another the struggles of Job. The word "fairness" doesn't seem to fit the world you and I inhabit. But when we take our anxieties to God's throne with thanksgiving, we determine to trust God's ultimate choices. Go back and read Paul's opening words to this anxious group of believers: "For I am confident of this very thing, that He who began a good work in you will perfect it until the day of Christ Jesus." Phil. 1:6. Yes, life is often incomprehensible. To trust in God is not to get what I judge proper but to know that peace for my soul is not in the absence of storms but peace for the soul is in the presence of Jesus in the storm. Quit thinking that you are the anchor of hope or failure. "let your request be made known to God" He is the God of peace.

When Paul writes the Philippians (from prison), he can fully understand their fears and doubts. We have preconceived convictions concerning actions and results. But it is not for me to stop the rain or create the flood. I can speak to the winds of life but it was Jesus who calmed the sea. Paul writes to a people who see the world events or maybe just storms of their own personal lives and they feel broken and inadequate. Philippians is a letter of powerful encouragement to a people who just don't know what to do next. It isn't a lack of faith but a faith with trembling. They need to just know what to do.

"Be anxious for nothing, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God. And the peace of God, which surpasses all comprehension, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus." Phil. 4:6-7.

It is not a magic formula or secret incantation to manipulate the fabric of the universe but take your words, your anxieties, your world challenges to God. Prayer, petitions (wants) accompanied by thanksgiving are brought to God. Paul's promise is not that I get what I want or that people or things change as I would hope them to be, but "the peace of God which is beyond my understanding will enter my heart and mind through Jesus" In the end, life is not mine to manipulate and we do live in a fallen world. What I can do is keep doing what I need but allow my heart to trust God's divine protection of the soul, my soul. We lift up, we protect, we stand in the gap, we love and we persuade but God is the only God. Let God be God and let us trust his providence, his wisdom and his choices as he intervenes in ways we may never understand.

I don't know why one person has the blessings of Solomon and another the struggles of Job. The word "fairness" doesn't seem to fit the world you and I inhabit. But when we take our anxieties to God's throne with thanksgiving, we determine to trust God's ultimate choices. Go back and read Paul's opening words to this anxious group of believers: "For I am confident of this very thing, that He who began a good work in you will perfect it until the day of Christ Jesus." Phil. 1:6. Yes, life is often incomprehensible. To trust in God is not to get what I judge proper but to know that peace for my soul is not in the absence of storms but peace for the soul is in the presence of Jesus in the storm. Quit thinking that you are the anchor of hope or failure. "let your request be made known to God" He is the God of peace.

"Let your request be made known..."

I know what I should do, I know how I should feel, I know what I should believe but in the heat of the moment, knowing just isn't enough. I often relate to the father of the boy before Jesus who said: "I do believe; help my unbelief." ^{Mark 9:24}. At such times, it feels like failure. Not that I have violated some commandment or failed to act but anxieties can feel so overwhelming in the crucible of life. Well meaning, simplistic encouragements from brothers can feel like sharp arrows or fiery coals. Still, we are those who do not give up, do not quit and stay the course.

Of all of God's people who at times struggled emotionally in the midst of seeking to do the right thing, Paul knows those feelings of angst and frustration. A light reading of his letters or the book of Acts and you might miss it. But see how even the Lord came to Paul in a vision to tell him "do not be afraid any longer" ^{Acts 18:8}. Those words of strength came to Paul who by now had scars reminding him of so many failed attempts to convince his own people to change. Jesus sees victory not in the manipulation of events but in the courage and faith that chooses what is needed regardless.

When Paul writes the Philippians (from prison), he can fully understand their fears and doubts. We have preconceived convictions concerning actions and results. But it is not for me to stop the rain or create the flood. I can speak to the winds of life but it was Jesus who calmed the sea. "Let your request be made known..."

I know what I should do, I know how I should feel, I know what I should believe but in the heat of the moment, knowing just isn't enough. I often relate to the father of the boy before Jesus who said: "I do believe; help my unbelief." Mark 9:24. At such times, it feels like failure. Not that I have violated some commandment or failed to act but anxieties can feel so overwhelming in the crucible of life. Well meaning, simplistic encouragements from brothers can feel like sharp arrows or fiery coals. Still, we are those who do not give up, do not quit and stay the course.

Of all of God's people who at times struggled emotionally in the midst of seeking to do the right thing, Paul knows those feelings of angst and frustration. A light reading of his letters or the book of Acts and you might miss it. But see how even the Lord came to Paul in a vision to tell him "do not be afraid any longer" Acts 18:8. Those words of strength came to Paul who by now had scars reminding him of so many failed attempts to convince his own people to change. Jesus sees victory not in the manipulation of events but in the courage and faith that chooses what is needed regardless.

When Paul writes the Philippians (from prison), he can fully understand their fears and doubts. We have preconceived convictions concerning actions and results. But it is not for me to stop the rain or create the flood. I can speak to the winds of life but it was Jesus who calmed the sea. Paul writes to a people who see the world events or maybe just storms of their own personal lives and they feel broken and inadequate. Philippians is a letter of powerful encouragement to a people who just don't know what to do next. It isn't a lack of faith but a faith with trembling. They need to just know what to do.

"Be anxious for nothing, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God. And the peace of God, which surpasses all comprehension, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus." Phil. 4:6-7.

It is not a magic formula or secret incantation to manipulate the fabric of the universe but take your words, your anxieties, your world challenges to God. Prayer, petitions (wants) accompanied by thanksgiving are brought to God. Paul's promise is not that I get what I want or that people or things change as I would hope them to be, but "the peace of God which is beyond my understanding will enter my heart and mind through Jesus" In the end, life is not mine to manipulate and we do live in a fallen world. What I can do is keep doing what I need but allow my heart to trust God's divine protection of the soul, my soul. We lift up, we protect, we stand in the gap, we love and we persuade but God is the only God. Let God be God and let us trust his providence, his wisdom and his choices as he intervenes in ways we may never understand.

I don't know why one person has the blessings of Solomon and another the struggles of Job. The word "fairness" doesn't seem to fit the world you and I inhabit. But when we take our anxieties to God's throne with thanksgiving, we determine to trust God's ultimate choices. Go back and read Paul's opening words to this anxious group of believers: "For I am confident of this very thing, that He who began a good work in you will perfect it until the day of Christ Jesus." Phil. 1:6. Yes, life is often incomprehensible. To trust in God is not to get what I judge proper but to know that peace for my soul is not in the absence of storms but peace for the soul is in the presence of Jesus in the storm. Quit thinking that you are the anchor of hope or failure. "let your request be made known to God" He is the God of peace.

I often relate to the father of the boy before Jesus who said: "I do believe; help my unbelief." Mark 9:24. At such times, it feels like failure. Not that I have violated some commandment or failed to act but anxieties can feel so overwhelming in the crucible of life. Well meaning, simplistic encouragements from brothers can feel like sharp arrows or fiery coals. Still, we are those who do not give up, do not quit and stay the course.

Of all of God's people who at times struggled emotionally in the midst of seeking to do the right thing, Paul knows those feelings of angst and frustration. A light reading of his letters or the book of Acts and you might miss it. But see how even the Lord came to Paul in a vision to tell him "do not be afraid any longer" Acts 18:8. Those words of strength came to Paul who by now had scars reminding him of so many failed attempts to convince his own people to change. Jesus sees victory not in the manipulation of events but in the courage and faith that chooses what is needed regardless.

When Paul writes the Philippians (from prison), he can fully understand their fears and doubts. We have preconceived convictions concerning actions and results. But it is not for me to stop the rain or create the flood. I can speak to the winds of life but it was Jesus who calmed the sea. Paul writes to a people who see the world events or maybe just storms of their own personal lives and they feel broken and inadequate. Philippians is a letter of powerful encouragement to a people who just don't know what to do next. It isn't a lack of faith but a faith with trembling. They need to just know what to do.

"Be anxious for nothing, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God. And the peace of God, which surpasses all comprehension, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus." Phil. 4:6-7.

It is not a magic formula or secret incantation to manipulate the fabric of the universe but take your words, your anxieties, your world challenges to God. Prayer, petitions (wants) accompanied by thanksgiving are brought to God. Paul's promise is not that I get what I want or that people or things change as I would hope them to be, but "the peace of God which is beyond my understanding will enter my heart and mind through Jesus" In the end, life is not mine to manipulate and we do live in a fallen world. What I can do is keep doing what I need but allow my heart to trust God's divine protection of the soul, my soul. We lift up, we protect, we stand in the gap, we love and we persuade but God is the only God. Let God be God and let us trust his providence, his wisdom and his choices as he intervenes in ways we may never understand.

I don't know why one person has the blessings of Solomon and another the struggles of Job. The word "fairness" doesn't seem to fit the world you and I inhabit. But when we take our anxieties to God's throne with thanksgiving, we determine to trust God's ultimate choices. Go back and read Paul's opening words to this anxious group of believers: "For I am confident of this very thing, that He who began a good work in you will perfect it until the day of Christ Jesus." Phil. 1:6. Yes, life is often incomprehensible. To trust in God is not to get what I judge proper but to know that peace for my soul is not in the absence of storms but peace for the soul is in the presence of Jesus in the storm. Quit thinking that you are the anchor of hope or failure. "let your request be made known to God" He is the God of peace.

I know what I should do, I know how I should feel, I know what I should believe but in the heat of the moment, knowing just isn't enough. I often relate to the father of the boy before Jesus who said: "I do believe; help my unbelief." Mark 9:24. At such times, it feels like failure. Not that I have violated some commandment or failed to act but anxieties can feel so overwhelming in the crucible of life. Well meaning, simplistic encouragements from brothers can feel like sharp arrows or fiery coals. Still, we are those who do not give up, do not quit and stay the course.

Of all of God's people who at times struggled emotionally in the midst of seeking to do the right thing, Paul knows those feelings of angst and frustration. A light reading of his letters or the book of Acts and you might miss it. But see how even the Lord came to Paul in a vision to tell him "do not be afraid any longer" Acts 18:8. Those words of strength came to Paul who by now had scars reminding him of so many failed attempts to convince his own people to change. Jesus sees victory not in the manipulation of events but in the courage and faith that chooses what is needed regardless.

When Paul writes the Philippians (from prison), he can fully understand their fears and doubts. We have preconceived convictions concerning actions and results. But it is not for me to stop the rain or create the flood. I can speak to the winds of life but it was Jesus who calmed the sea. Paul writes to a people who see the world events or maybe just storms of their own personal lives and they feel broken and inadequate. Philippians is a letter of powerful encouragement to a people who just don't know what to do next. It isn't a lack of faith but a faith with trembling. They need to just know what to do.

"Be anxious for nothing, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God. And the peace of God, which surpasses all comprehension, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus." Phil. 4:6-7.

It is not a magic formula or secret incantation to manipulate the fabric of the universe but take your words, your anxieties, your world challenges to God. Prayer, petitions (wants) accompanied by thanksgiving are brought to God. Paul's promise is not that I get what I want or that people or things change as I would hope them to be, but "the peace of God which is beyond my understanding will enter my heart and mind through Jesus" In the end, life is not mine to manipulate and we do live in a fallen world. What I can do is keep doing what I need but allow my heart to trust God's divine protection of the soul, my soul. We lift up, we protect, we stand in the gap, we love and we persuade but God is the only God. Let God be God and let us trust his providence, his wisdom and his choices as he intervenes in ways we may never understand.

I don't know why one person has the blessings of Solomon and another the struggles of Job. The word "fairness" doesn't seem to fit the world you and I inhabit. But when we take our anxieties to God's throne with thanksgiving, we determine to trust God's ultimate choices. Go back and read Paul's opening words to this anxious group of believers: "For I am confident of this very thing, that He who began a good work in you will perfect it until the day of Christ Jesus." Phil. 1:6. Yes, life is often incomprehensible. To trust in God is not to get what I judge proper but to know that peace for my soul is not in the absence of storms but peace for the soul is in the presence of Jesus in the storm. Quit thinking that you are the anchor of hope or failure. "let your request be made known to God" He is the God of peace.

I know what I should do, I know how I should feel, I know what I should believe but in the heat of the moment, knowing just isn't enough. I often relate to the father of the boy before Jesus who said: "I do believe; help my unbelief." Mark 9:24. At such times, it feels like failure. Not that I have violated some commandment or failed to act but anxieties can feel so overwhelming in the crucible of life. Well meaning, simplistic encouragements from brothers can feel like sharp arrows or fiery coals. Still, we are those who do not give up, do not quit and stay the course.

Of all of God's people who at times struggled emotionally in the midst of seeking to do the right thing, Paul knows those feelings of angst and frustration. A light reading of his letters or the book of Acts and you might miss it. But see how even the Lord came to Paul in a vision to tell him "do not be afraid any longer" Acts 18:8. Those words of strength came to Paul who by now had scars reminding him of so many failed attempts to convince his own people to change. Jesus sees victory not in the manipulation of events but in the courage and faith that chooses what is needed regardless.

When Paul writes the Philippians (from prison), he can fully understand their fears and doubts. We have preconceived convictions concerning actions and results. But it is not for me to stop the rain or create the flood. I can speak to the winds of life but it was Jesus who calmed the sea. Paul writes to a people who see the world events or maybe just storms of their own personal lives and they feel broken and inadequate. Philippians is a letter of powerful encouragement to a people who just don't know what to do next. It isn't a lack of faith but a faith with trembling. They need to just know what to do.

"Be anxious for nothing, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God. And the peace of God, which surpasses all comprehension, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus." Phil. 4:6-7.

It is not a magic formula or secret incantation to manipulate the fabric of the universe but take your words, your anxieties, your world challenges to God. Prayer, petitions (wants) accompanied by thanksgiving are brought to God. Paul's promise is not that I get what I want or that people or things change as I would hope them to be, but "the peace of God which is beyond my understanding will enter my heart and mind through Jesus" In the end, life is not mine to manipulate and we do live in a fallen world. What I can do is keep doing what I need but allow my heart to trust God's divine protection of the soul, my soul. We lift up, we protect, we stand in the gap, we love and we persuade but God is the only God. Let God be God and let us trust his providence, his wisdom and his choices as he intervenes in ways we may never understand.

I don't know why one person has the blessings of Solomon and another the struggles of Job. The word "fairness" doesn't seem to fit the world you and I inhabit. But when we take our anxieties to God's throne with thanksgiving, we determine to trust God's ultimate choices. Go back and read Paul's opening words to this anxious group of believers: "For I am confident of this very thing, that He who began a good work in you will perfect it until the day of Christ Jesus." Phil. 1:6. Yes, life is often incomprehensible. To trust in God is not to get what I judge proper but to know that peace for my soul is not in the absence of storms but peace for the soul is in the presence of Jesus in the storm. Quit thinking that you are the anchor of hope or failure. "let your request be made known to God" He is the God of peace.

Let God be God and let us trust his providence, his wisdom and his choices as he intervenes in ways we may never understand.

I don't know why one person has the blessings of Solomon and another the struggles of Job. The word "fairness" doesn't seem to fit the world you and I inhabit. But when we take our anxieties to God's throne with thanksgiving, we determine to trust God's ultimate choices. Go back and read Paul's opening words to this anxious group of believers: "For I am confident of this very thing, that He who began a good work in you will perfect it until the day of Christ Jesus." ^{Phil. 1:6}. Yes, life is often incomprehensible. To trust in God is not to get what I judge proper but to know that peace for my soul is not in the absence of storms but peace for the soul is in the presence of Jesus in the storm. Quit thinking that you are the anchor of hope or failure. "let your request be made known to God" He is the God of peace.

"Let your request be made known..."

I know what I should do, I know how I should feel, I know what I should believe but in the heat of the moment, knowing just isn't enough. I often relate to the father of the boy before Jesus who said: "I do believe; help my unbelief." Mark 9:24. At such times, it feels like failure. Not that I have violated some commandment or failed to act but anxieties can feel so overwhelming in the crucible of life. Well meaning, simplistic encouragements from brothers can feel like sharp arrows or fiery coals. Still, we are those who do not give up, do not quit and stay the course.

Of all of God's people who at times struggled emotionally in the midst of seeking to do the right thing, Paul knows those feelings of angst and frustration. A light reading of his letters or the book of Acts and you might miss it. But see how even the Lord came to Paul in a vision to tell him "do not be afraid any longer" Acts 18:8. Those words of strength came to Paul who by now had scars reminding him of so many failed attempts to convince his own people to change. Jesus sees victory not in the manipulation of events but in the courage and faith that chooses what is needed regardless.

When Paul writes the Philippians (from prison), he can fully understand their fears and doubts. We have preconceived convictions concerning actions and results. But it is not for me to stop the rain or create the flood. I can speak to the winds of life but it was Jesus who calmed the sea. Paul writes to a people who see the world events or maybe just storms of their own personal lives and they feel broken and inadequate. Philippians is a letter of powerful encouragement to a people who just don't know what to do next. It isn't a lack of faith but a faith with trembling. They need to just know what to do.

"Be anxious for nothing, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God. And the peace of God, which surpasses all comprehension, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus." Phil. 4:6-7.

It is not a magic formula or secret incantation to manipulate the fabric of the universe but take your words, your anxieties, your world challenges to God. Prayer, petitions (wants) accompanied by thanksgiving are brought to God. Paul's promise is not that I get what I want or that people or things change as I would hope them to be, but "the peace of God which is beyond my understanding will enter my heart and mind through Jesus" In the end, life is not mine to manipulate and we do live in a fallen world. What I can do is keep doing what I need but allow my heart to trust God's divine protection of the soul, my soul. We lift up, we protect, we stand in the gap, we love and we persuade but God is the only God. Let God be God and let us trust his providence, his wisdom and his choices as he intervenes in ways we may never understand.

"Let your request be made known..."

I know what I should do, I know how I should feel, I know what I should believe but in the heat of the moment, knowing just isn't enough. I often relate to the father of the boy before Jesus who said: "I do believe; help my unbelief." Mark 9:24. At such times, it feels like failure. Not that I have violated some commandment or failed to act but anxieties can feel so overwhelming in the crucible of life. Well meaning, simplistic encouragements from brothers can feel like sharp arrows or fiery coals. Still, we are those who do not give up, do not quit and stay the course.

Of all of God's people who at times struggled emotionally in the midst of seeking to do the right thing, Paul knows those feelings of angst and frustration. A light reading of his letters or the book of Acts and you might miss it. But see how even the Lord came to Paul in a vision to tell him "do not be afraid any longer" Acts 18:8. Those words of strength came to Paul who by now had scars reminding him of so many failed attempts to convince his own people to change. Jesus sees victory not in the manipulation of events but in the courage and faith that chooses what is needed regardless.

When Paul writes the Philippians (from prison), he can fully understand their fears and doubts. We have preconceived convictions concerning actions and results. But it is not for me to stop the rain or create the flood. I can speak to the winds of life but it was Jesus who calmed the sea. Paul writes to a people who see the world events or maybe just storms of their own personal lives and they feel broken and inadequate. Philippians is a letter of powerful encouragement to a people who just don't know what to do next. It isn't a lack of faith but a faith with trembling. They need to just know what to do.

"Be anxious for nothing, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God. And the peace of God, which surpasses all comprehension, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus." Phil. 4:6-7.

It is not a magic formula or secret incantation to manipulate the fabric of the universe but take your words, your anxieties, your world challenges to God. Prayer, petitions (wants) accompanied by thanksgiving are brought to God. Paul's promise is not that I get what I want or that people or things change as I would hope them to be, but "the peace of God which is beyond my understanding will enter my heart and mind through Jesus" In the end, life is not mine to manipulate and we do live in a fallen world. What I can do is keep doing what I need but allow my heart to trust God's divine protection of the soul, my soul. We lift up, we protect, we stand in the gap, we love and we persuade but God is the only God. Let God be God and let us trust his providence, his wisdom and his choices as he intervenes in ways we may never understand.

I don't know why one person has the blessings of Solomon and another the struggles of Job. The word "fairness" doesn't seem to fit the world you and I inhabit. But when we take our anxieties to God's throne with thanksgiving, we determine to trust God's ultimate choices. Go back and read Paul's opening words to this anxious group of believers: "For I am confident of this very thing, that He who began a good work in you will perfect it until the day of Christ Jesus." Phil. 1:6. Yes, life is often incomprehensible. To trust in God is not to get what I judge proper but to know that peace for my soul is not in the absence of storms but peace for the soul is in the presence of Jesus in the storm. Quit thinking that you are the anchor of hope or failure. "let your request be made known to God" He is the God of peace.

"Be anxious for nothing, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God. And the peace of God, which surpasses all comprehension, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus." Phil. 4:6-7.

It is not a magic formula or secret incantation to manipulate the fabric of the universe but take your words, your anxieties, your world challenges to God. Prayer, petitions (wants) accompanied by thanksgiving are brought to God. Paul's promise is not that I get what I want or that people or things change as I would hope them to be, but "the peace of God which is beyond my understanding will enter my heart and mind through Jesus" In the end, life is not mine to manipulate and we do live in a fallen world. What I can do is keep doing what I need but allow my heart to trust God's divine protection of the soul, my soul. We lift up, we protect, we stand in the gap, we love and we persuade but God is the only God. Let God be God and let us trust his providence, his wisdom and his choices as he intervenes in ways we may never understand.

I don't know why one person has the blessings of Solomon and another the struggles of Job. The word "fairness" doesn't seem to fit the world you and I inhabit. But when we take our anxieties to God's throne with thanksgiving, we determine to trust God's ultimate choices. Go back and read Paul's opening words to this anxious group of believers: "For I am confident of this very thing, that He who began a good work in you will perfect it until the day of Christ Jesus." Phil. 1:6. Yes, life is often incomprehensible. To trust in God is not to get what I judge proper but to know that peace for my soul is not in the absence of storms but peace for the soul is in the presence of Jesus in the storm. Quit thinking that you are the anchor of hope or failure. "let your request be made known to God" He is the God of peace.

I know what I should do, I know how I should feel, I know what I should believe but in the heat of the moment, knowing just isn't enough. I often relate to the father of the boy before Jesus who said: "I do believe; help my unbelief." Mark 9:24. At such times, it feels like failure. Not that I have violated some commandment or failed to act but anxieties can feel so overwhelming in the crucible of life. Well meaning, simplistic encouragements from brothers can feel like sharp arrows or fiery coals. Still, we are those who do not give up, do not quit and stay the course.

Of all of God's people who at times struggled emotionally in the midst of seeking to do the right thing, Paul knows those feelings of angst and frustration. A light reading of his letters or the book of Acts and you might miss it. But see how even the Lord came to Paul in a vision to tell him "do not be afraid any longer" Acts 18:8. Those words of strength came to Paul who by now had scars reminding him of so many failed attempts to convince his own people to change. Jesus sees victory not in the manipulation of events but in the courage and faith that chooses what is needed regardless.

When Paul writes the Philippians (from prison), he can fully understand their fears and doubts. We have preconceived convictions concerning actions and results. But it is not for me to stop the rain or create the flood. I can speak to the winds of life but it was Jesus who calmed the sea. Paul writes to a people who see the world events or maybe just storms of their own personal lives and they feel broken and inadequate. Philippians is a letter of powerful encouragement to a people who just don't know what to do next. It isn't a lack of faith but a faith with trembling. They need to just know what to do.

"Be anxious for nothing, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God. And the peace of God, which surpasses all comprehension, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus." Phil. 4:6-7.

I know what I should do, I know how I should feel, I know what I should believe but in the heat of the moment, knowing just isn't enough. I often relate to the father of the boy before Jesus who said: "I do believe; help my unbelief." Mark 9:24. At such times, it feels like failure. Not that I have violated some commandment or failed to act but anxieties can feel so overwhelming in the crucible of life. Well meaning, simplistic encouragements from brothers can feel like sharp arrows or fiery coals. Still, we are those who do not give up, do not quit and stay the course.

Of all of God's people who at times struggled emotionally in the midst of seeking to do the right thing, Paul knows those feelings of angst and frustration. A light reading of his letters or the book of Acts and you might miss it. But see how even the Lord came to Paul in a vision to tell him "do not be afraid any longer" Acts 18:8. Those words of strength came to Paul who by now had scars reminding him of so many failed attempts to convince his own people to change. Jesus sees victory not in the manipulation of events but in the courage and faith that chooses what is needed regardless.

When Paul writes the Philippians (from prison), he can fully understand their fears and doubts. We have preconceived convictions concerning actions and results. But it is not for me to stop the rain or create the flood. I can speak to the winds of life but it was Jesus who calmed the sea. Paul writes to a people who see the world events or maybe just storms of their own personal lives and they feel broken and inadequate. Philippians is a letter of powerful encouragement to a people who just don't know what to do next. It isn't a lack of faith but a faith with trembling. They need to just know what to do.

"Be anxious for nothing, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God. And the peace of God, which surpasses all comprehension, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus." Phil. 4:6-7.

It is not a magic formula or secret incantation to manipulate the fabric of the universe but take your words, your anxieties, your world challenges to God. Prayer, petitions (wants) accompanied by thanksgiving are brought to God. Paul's promise is not that I get what I want or that people or things change as I would hope them to be, but "the peace of God which is beyond my understanding will enter my heart and mind through Jesus" In the end, life is not mine to manipulate and we do live in a fallen world. What I can do is keep doing what I need but allow my heart to trust God's divine protection of the soul, my soul. We lift up, we protect, we stand in the gap, we love and we persuade but God is the only God. Let God be God and let us trust his providence, his wisdom and his choices as he intervenes in ways we may never understand.

I don't know why one person has the blessings of Solomon and another the struggles of Job. The word "fairness" doesn't seem to fit the world you and I inhabit. But when we take our anxieties to God's throne with thanksgiving, we determine to trust God's ultimate choices. Go back and read Paul's opening words to this anxious group of believers: "For I am confident of this very thing, that He who began a good work in you will perfect it until the day of Christ Jesus." Phil. 1:6. Yes, life is often incomprehensible. To trust in God is not to get what I judge proper but to know that peace for my soul is not in the absence of storms but peace for the soul is in the presence of Jesus in the storm. Quit thinking that you are the anchor of hope or failure. "let your request be made known to God" He is the God of peace.

Well meaning, simplistic encouragements from brothers can feel like sharp arrows or fiery coals. Still, we are those who do not give up, do not quit and stay the course.

Of all of God's people who at times struggled emotionally in the midst of seeking to do the right thing, Paul knows those feelings of angst and frustration. A light reading of his letters or the book of Acts and you might miss it. But see how even the Lord came to Paul in a vision to tell him "do not be afraid any longer" Acts 18:8. Those words of strength came to Paul who by now had scars reminding him of so many failed attempts to convince his own people to change. Jesus sees victory not in the manipulation of events but in the courage and faith that chooses what is needed regardless.

When Paul writes the Philippians (from prison), he can fully understand their fears and doubts. We have preconceived convictions concerning actions and results. But it is not for me to stop the rain or create the flood. I can speak to the winds of life but it was Jesus who calmed the sea. Paul writes to a people who see the world events or maybe just storms of their own personal lives and they feel broken and inadequate. Philippians is a letter of powerful encouragement to a people who just don't know what to do next. It isn't a lack of faith but a faith with trembling. They need to just know what to do.

"Be anxious for nothing, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God. And the peace of God, which surpasses all comprehension, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus." Phil. 4:6-7.

It is not a magic formula or secret incantation to manipulate the fabric of the universe but take your words, your anxieties, your world challenges to God. Prayer, petitions (wants) accompanied by thanksgiving are brought to God. Paul's promise is not that I get what I want or that people or things change as I would hope them to be, but "the peace of God which is beyond my understanding will enter my heart and mind through Jesus" In the end, life is not mine to manipulate and we do live in a fallen world. What I can do is keep doing what I need but allow my heart to trust God's divine protection of the soul, my soul. We lift up, we protect, we stand in the gap, we love and we persuade but God is the only God. Let God be God and let us trust his providence, his wisdom and his choices as he intervenes in ways we may never understand.

I don't know why one person has the blessings of Solomon and another the struggles of Job. The word "fairness" doesn't seem to fit the world you and I inhabit. But when we take our anxieties to God's throne with thanksgiving, we determine to trust God's ultimate choices. Go back and read Paul's opening words to this anxious group of believers: "For I am confident of this very thing, that He who began a good work in you will perfect it until the day of Christ Jesus." Phil. 1:6. Yes, life is often incomprehensible. To trust in God is not to get what I judge proper but to know that peace for my soul is not in the absence of storms but peace for the soul is in the presence of Jesus in the storm. Quit thinking that you are the anchor of hope or failure. "let your request be made known to God" He is the God of peace.

"Let your request be made known..."

I know what I should do, I know how I should feel, I know what I should believe but in the heat of the moment, knowing just isn't enough. I often relate to the father of the boy before Jesus who said: "I do believe; help my unbelief." Mark 9:24. At such times, it feels like failure. Not that I have violated some commandment or failed to act but anxieties can feel so overwhelming in the crucible of life. "Let your request be made known..."

I know what I should do, I know how I should feel, I know what I should believe but in the heat of the moment, knowing just isn't enough. I often relate to the father of the boy before Jesus who said: "I do believe; help my unbelief." Mark 9:24. At such times, it feels like failure. Not that I have violated some commandment or failed to act but anxieties can feel so overwhelming in the crucible of life. Well meaning, simplistic encouragements from brothers can feel like sharp arrows or fiery coals. Still, we are those who do not give up, do not quit and stay the course.

Of all of God's people who at times struggled emotionally in the midst of seeking to do the right thing, Paul knows those feelings of angst and frustration. A light reading of his letters or the book of Acts and you might miss it. But see how even the Lord came to Paul in a vision to tell him "do not be afraid any longer" Acts 18:8. Those words of strength came to Paul who by now had scars reminding him of so many failed attempts to convince his own people to change. Jesus sees victory not in the manipulation of events but in the courage and faith that chooses what is needed regardless.

When Paul writes the Philippians (from prison), he can fully understand their fears and doubts. We have preconceived convictions concerning actions and results. But it is not for me to stop the rain or create the flood. I can speak to the winds of life but it was Jesus who calmed the sea. Paul writes to a people who see the world events or maybe just storms of their own personal lives and they feel broken and inadequate. Philippians is a letter of powerful encouragement to a people who just don't know what to do next. It isn't a lack of faith but a faith with trembling. They need to just know what to do.

"Be anxious for nothing, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God. And the peace of God, which surpasses all comprehension, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus." Phil. 4:6-7.

It is not a magic formula or secret incantation to manipulate the fabric of the universe but take your words, your anxieties, your world challenges to God. Prayer, petitions (wants) accompanied by thanksgiving are brought to God. Paul's promise is not that I get what I want or that people or things change as I would hope them to be, but "the peace of God which is beyond my understanding will enter my heart and mind through Jesus" In the end, life is not mine to manipulate and we do live in a fallen world. What I can do is keep doing what I need but allow my heart to trust God's divine protection of the soul, my soul. We lift up, we protect, we stand in the gap, we love and we persuade but God is the only God. Let God be God and let us trust his providence, his wisdom and his choices as he intervenes in ways we may never understand.

I don't know why one person has the blessings of Solomon and another the struggles of Job. The word "fairness" doesn't seem to fit the world you and I inhabit. But when we take our anxieties to God's throne with thanksgiving, we determine to trust God's ultimate choices. Go back and read Paul's opening words to this anxious group of believers: "For I am confident of this very thing, that He who began a good work in you will perfect it until the day of Christ Jesus." Phil. 1:6. Yes, life is often incomprehensible. To trust in God is not to get what I judge proper but to know that peace for my soul is not in the absence of storms but peace for the soul is in the presence of Jesus in the storm. Quit thinking that you are the anchor of hope or failure. "let your request be made known to God" He is the God of peace.
