We are the Clay

I watched another short YouTube video the other day. Elephant verses Rhino. I knew the outcome before it began. In fact, every animal of the jungle in the grandstands watching knew how it would end. The elephant that seemed 5 times larger than that rhino, with those two huge tusks was going to teach the rhino a lesson. But rhinos don't seem all that intelligent. For some reason, he thought he would win. Like I said, it was a short video. It was a short battle. Fortunately for the rhino, the elephant was satisfied just in proving the point (literally) and did not pursue it to the end.

Seeing the stupidity of that rhino, I thought about mankind, people. How often do we also believe that we rule, that we decide and no one can challenge our choices. We do it in all areas of life. We break God's commandments thinking there will be no consequences or reprisals. Then after destroying marriages, after losing friends, after suffering devastation for our arrogance, we complain to God or maybe just scream at the universe that life is unfair.

I hope that particular rhino learned his lesson that day. But with people, it seems that there are so few that learn. Even more devastating is when people who claim to be people of faith fail to learn. We believe that God exists, but we fail to embrace the greatest attribute in God. God is love. We think life is about winning, coming out on top, standing there with our foot on the neck of any who oppose us, INCLUDING GOD. But God is love and our God calls us to be people of love. Let me put it stronger: God demands that we love Him and love one another. The greatest of all the commandments are these and do not forget, they are commandments, not suggestions.

In Isaiah, the prophet spends a lot of time wrestling with the relationship between the God of Israel and Israel. Why are God's people suffering? The same question can be asked today. How can it be that people come to Christ only to continue with lives of hunger and thirst, lives of pain and emptiness? In Isaiah 59 God tells us that he is able to forgive if we are willing to change.

"Behold, the LORD'S hand is not so short That it cannot save; Nor is His ear so dull That it cannot hear. But your iniquities have made a separation between you and your God, And your sins have hidden His face from you so that He does not hear." Isaiah 59:1-2.

Something has to change! It is not God who needs to accommodate our choices, but we need purity and goodness, not iniquity and failure. So, in Isaiah 64 we are called to surrender in a way unimaginable to most people, even believers. We are to surrender like clay surrenders to the potter.

"But now, O LORD, You are our Father, We are the clay, and You our potter; And all of us are the work of Your hand." Isaiah 64:8.

It is a call for absolute humility, servitude and surrender. In other words, don't be like that rhino. Know that God rules. Our hope is in total worship. Look up that word in Hebrew or Greek. We bow down, mind, heart and soul. We are the clay.

The beauty of this surrender is in the love of God. This loving God will mold us and make us into that same love but only if we are the clay.

We are the Clay

I watched another short YouTube video the other day. Elephant verses Rhino. I knew the outcome before it began. In fact, every animal of the jungle in the grandstands watching knew how it would end. The elephant that seemed 5 times larger than that rhino, with those two huge tusks was going to teach the rhino a lesson. But rhinos don't seem all that intelligent. For some reason, he thought he would win. Like I said, it was a short video. It was a short battle. Fortunately for the rhino, the elephant was satisfied just in proving the point (literally) and did not pursue it to the end.

Seeing the stupidity of that rhino, I thought about mankind, people. How often do we also believe that we rule, that we decide and no one can challenge our choices. We do it in all areas of life. We break God's commandments thinking there will be no consequences or reprisals. Then after destroying marriages, after losing friends, after suffering devastation for our arrogance, we complain to God or maybe just scream at the universe that life is unfair.

I hope that particular rhino learned his lesson that day. But with people, it seems that there are so few that learn. Even more devastating is when people who claim to be people of faith fail to learn. We believe that God exists, but we fail to embrace the greatest attribute in God. God is love. We think life is about winning, coming out on top, standing there with our foot on the neck of any who oppose us, INCLUDING GOD. But God is love and our God calls us to be people of love. Let me put it stronger: God demands that we love Him and love one another. The greatest of all the commandments are these and do not forget, they are commandments, not suggestions.

In Isaiah, the prophet spends a lot of time wrestling with the relationship between the God of Israel and Israel. Why are God's people suffering? The same question can be asked today. How can it be that people come to Christ only to continue with lives of hunger and thirst, lives of pain and emptiness? In Isaiah 59 God tells us that he is able to forgive if we are willing to change.

"Behold, the LORD'S hand is not so short That it cannot save; Nor is His ear so dull That it cannot hear. But your iniquities have made a separation between you and your God, And your sins have hidden His face from you so that He does not hear." Isaiah 59:1-2.

Something has to change! It is not God who needs to accommodate our choices, but we need purity and goodness, not iniquity and failure. So, in Isaiah 64 we are called to surrender in a way unimaginable to most people, even believers. We are to surrender like clay surrenders to the potter.

"But now, O LORD, You are our Father, We are the clay, and You our potter; And all of us are the work of Your hand." Isaiah 64:8.

It is a call for absolute humility, servitude and surrender. In other words, don't be like that rhino. Know that God rules. Our hope is in total worship. Look up that word in Hebrew or Greek. We bow down, mind, heart and soul. We are the clay.

The beauty of this surrender is in the love of God. This loving God will mold us and make us into that same love but only if we are the clay.

Then after destroying marriages, after losing friends, after suffering devastation for our arrogance, we complain to God or maybe just scream at the universe that life is unfair.

I hope that particular rhino learned his lesson that day. But with people, it seems that there are so few that learn. Even more devastating is when people who claim to be people of faith fail to learn. We believe that God exists, but we fail to embrace the greatest attribute in God. God is love. We think life is about winning, coming out on top, standing there with our foot on the neck of any who oppose us, INCLUDING GOD. But God is love and our God calls us to be people of love. Let me put it stronger: God demands that we love Him and love one another. The greatest of all the commandments are these and do not forget, they are commandments, not suggestions.

In Isaiah, the prophet spends a lot of time wrestling with the relationship between the God of Israel and Israel. Why are God's people suffering? The same question can be asked today. How can it be that people come to Christ only to continue with lives of hunger and thirst, lives of pain and emptiness? In Isaiah 59 God tells us that he is able to forgive if we are willing to change.

"Behold, the LORD'S hand is not so short That it cannot save; Nor is His ear so dull That it cannot hear. But your iniquities have made a separation between you and your God, And your sins have hidden His face from you so that He does not hear." Isaiah 59:1-2.

Something has to change! It is not God who needs to accommodate our choices, but we need purity and goodness, not iniquity and failure. So, in Isaiah 64 we are called to surrender in a way unimaginable to most people, even believers. We are to surrender like clay surrenders to the potter.

"But now, O LORD, You are our Father, We are the clay, and You our potter; And all of us are the work of Your hand." Isaiah 64:8.

It is a call for absolute humility, servitude and surrender. In other words, don't be like that rhino. Know that God rules. Our hope is in total worship. Look up that word in Hebrew or Greek. We bow down, mind, heart and soul. We are the clay.

The beauty of this surrender is in the love of God. This loving God will mold us and make us into that same love but only if we are the clay.

We are the Clay

I watched another short YouTube video the other day. Elephant verses Rhino. I knew the outcome before it began. In fact, every animal of the jungle in the grandstands watching knew how it would end. The elephant that seemed 5 times larger than that rhino, with those two huge tusks was going to teach the rhino a lesson. But rhinos don't seem all that intelligent. For some reason, he thought he would win. Like I said, it was a short video. It was a short battle. Fortunately for the rhino, the elephant was satisfied just in proving the point (literally) and did not pursue it to the end.

Seeing the stupidity of that rhino, I thought about mankind, people. How often do we also believe that we rule, that we decide and no one can challenge our choices. We do it in all areas of life. We break God's commandments thinking there will be no consequences or reprisals. Then after destroying marriages, after losing friends, after suffering devastation for our arrogance, we complain to God or maybe just scream at the universe that life is unfair.

How can it be that people come to Christ only to continue with lives of hunger and thirst, lives of pain and emptiness? In Isaiah 59 God tells us that he is able to forgive if we are willing to change.

"Behold, the LORD'S hand is not so short That it cannot save; Nor is His ear so dull That it cannot hear. But your iniquities have made a separation between you and your God, And your sins have hidden His face from you so that He does not hear." Isaiah 59:1-2.

Something has to change! It is not God who needs to accommodate our choices, but we need purity and goodness, not iniquity and failure. So, in Isaiah 64 we are called to surrender in a way unimaginable to most people, even believers. We are to surrender like clay surrenders to the potter.

"But now, O LORD, You are our Father, We are the clay, and You our potter; And all of us are the work of Your hand." Isaiah 64:8.

It is a call for absolute humility, servitude and surrender. In other words, don't be like that rhino. Know that God rules. Our hope is in total worship. Look up that word in Hebrew or Greek. We bow down, mind, heart and soul. We are the clay.

The beauty of this surrender is in the love of God. This loving God will mold us and make us into that same love but only if we are the clay.

We are the Clay

I watched another short YouTube video the other day. Elephant verses Rhino. I knew the outcome before it began. In fact, every animal of the jungle in the grandstands watching knew how it would end. The elephant that seemed 5 times larger than that rhino, with those two huge tusks was going to teach the rhino a lesson. But rhinos don't seem all that intelligent. For some reason, he thought he would win. Like I said, it was a short video. It was a short battle. Fortunately for the rhino, the elephant was satisfied just in proving the point (literally) and did not pursue it to the end.

Seeing the stupidity of that rhino, I thought about mankind, people. How often do we also believe that we rule, that we decide and no one can challenge our choices. We do it in all areas of life. We break God's commandments thinking there will be no consequences or reprisals. Then after destroying marriages, after losing friends, after suffering devastation for our arrogance, we complain to God or maybe just scream at the universe that life is unfair.

I hope that particular rhino learned his lesson that day. But with people, it seems that there are so few that learn. Even more devastating is when people who claim to be people of faith fail to learn. We believe that God exists, but we fail to embrace the greatest attribute in God. God is love. We think life is about winning, coming out on top, standing there with our foot on the neck of any who oppose us, INCLUDING GOD. But God is love and our God calls us to be people of love. Let me put it stronger: God demands that we love Him and love one another. The greatest of all the commandments are these and do not forget, they are commandments, not suggestions.

In Isaiah, the prophet spends a lot of time wrestling with the relationship between the God of Israel and Israel. Why are God's people suffering? The same question can be asked today. How can it be that people come to Christ only to continue with lives of hunger and thirst, lives of pain and emptiness? "But now, O LORD, You are our Father, We are the clay, and You our potter; And all of us are the work of Your hand." Isaiah 64:8.

It is a call for absolute humility, servitude and surrender. In other words, don't be like that rhino. Know that God rules. Our hope is in total worship. Look up that word in Hebrew or Greek. We bow down, mind, heart and soul. We are the clay.

The beauty of this surrender is in the love of God. This loving God will mold us and make us into that same love but only if we are the clay.

We are the Clay

I watched another short YouTube video the other day. Elephant verses Rhino. I knew the outcome before it began. In fact, every animal of the jungle in the grandstands watching knew how it would end. The elephant that seemed 5 times larger than that rhino, with those two huge tusks was going to teach the rhino a lesson. But rhinos don't seem all that intelligent. For some reason, he thought he would win. Like I said, it was a short video. It was a short battle. Fortunately for the rhino, the elephant was satisfied just in proving the point (literally) and did not pursue it to the end.

Seeing the stupidity of that rhino, I thought about mankind, people. How often do we also believe that we rule, that we decide and no one can challenge our choices. We do it in all areas of life. We break God's commandments thinking there will be no consequences or reprisals. Then after destroying marriages, after losing friends, after suffering devastation for our arrogance, we complain to God or maybe just scream at the universe that life is unfair.

I hope that particular rhino learned his lesson that day. But with people, it seems that there are so few that learn. Even more devastating is when people who claim to be people of faith fail to learn. We believe that God exists, but we fail to embrace the greatest attribute in God. God is love. We think life is about winning, coming out on top, standing there with our foot on the neck of any who oppose us, INCLUDING GOD. But God is love and our God calls us to be people of love. Let me put it stronger: God demands that we love Him and love one another. The greatest of all the commandments are these and do not forget, they are commandments, not suggestions.

In Isaiah, the prophet spends a lot of time wrestling with the relationship between the God of Israel and Israel. Why are God's people suffering? The same question can be asked today. How can it be that people come to Christ only to continue with lives of hunger and thirst, lives of pain and emptiness? In Isaiah 59 God tells us that he is able to forgive if we are willing to change.

"Behold, the LORD'S hand is not so short That it cannot save; Nor is His ear so dull That it cannot hear. But your iniquities have made a separation between you and your God, And your sins have hidden His face from you so that He does not hear." Isaiah 59:1-2.

Something has to change! It is not God who needs to accommodate our choices, but we need purity and goodness, not iniquity and failure. So, in Isaiah 64 we are called to surrender in a way unimaginable to most people, even believers. We are to surrender like clay surrenders to the potter.

"But now, O LORD, You are our Father, We are the clay, and You our potter; And all of us are the work of Your hand." Isaiah 64:8.

We are the Clay

I watched another short YouTube video the other day. Elephant verses Rhino. I knew the outcome before it began. In fact, every animal of the jungle in the grandstands watching knew how it would end. The elephant that seemed 5 times larger than that rhino, with those two huge tusks was going to teach the rhino a lesson. But rhinos don't seem all that intelligent. For some reason, he thought he would win. Like I said, it was a short video. It was a short battle. Fortunately for the rhino, the elephant was satisfied just in proving the point (literally) and did not pursue it to the end.

Seeing the stupidity of that rhino, I thought about mankind, people. How often do we also believe that we rule, that we decide and no one can challenge our choices. We do it in all areas of life. We break God's commandments thinking there will be no consequences or reprisals. Then after destroying marriages, after losing friends, after suffering devastation for our arrogance, we complain to God or maybe just scream at the universe that life is unfair.

I hope that particular rhino learned his lesson that day. But with people, it seems that there are so few that learn. Even more devastating is when people who claim to be people of faith fail to learn. We believe that God exists, but we fail to embrace the greatest attribute in God. God is love. We think life is about winning, coming out on top, standing there with our foot on the neck of any who oppose us, INCLUDING GOD. But God is love and our God calls us to be people of love. Let me put it stronger: God demands that we love Him and love one another. The greatest of all the commandments are these and do not forget, they are commandments, not suggestions.

In Isaiah, the prophet spends a lot of time wrestling with the relationship between the God of Israel and Israel. Why are God's people suffering? The same question can be asked today. How can it be that people come to Christ only to continue with lives of hunger and thirst, lives of pain and emptiness? In Isaiah 59 God tells us that he is able to forgive if we are willing to change.

"Behold, the LORD'S hand is not so short That it cannot save; Nor is His ear so dull That it cannot hear. But your iniquities have made a separation between you and your God, And your sins have hidden His face from you so that He does not hear." Isaiah 59:1-2.

Something has to change! It is not God who needs to accommodate our choices, but we need purity and goodness, not iniquity and failure. So, in Isaiah 64 we are called to surrender in a way unimaginable to most people, even believers. We are to surrender like clay surrenders to the potter.

"But now, O LORD, You are our Father, We are the clay, and You our potter; And all of us are the work of Your hand." Isaiah 64:8.

It is a call for absolute humility, servitude and surrender. In other words, don't be like that rhino. Know that God rules. Our hope is in total worship. Look up that word in Hebrew or Greek. We bow down, mind, heart and soul. We are the clay.

The beauty of this surrender is in the love of God. This loving God will mold us and make us into that same love but only if we are the clay.

We are the Clay

I watched another short YouTube video the other day. Elephant verses Rhino. I knew the outcome before it began. In fact, every animal of the jungle in the grandstands watching knew how it would end. The elephant that seemed 5 times larger than that rhino, with those two huge tusks was going to teach the rhino a lesson. But rhinos don't seem all that intelligent. For some reason, he thought he would win. Like I said, it was a short video. It was a short battle. Fortunately for the rhino, the elephant was satisfied just in proving the point (literally) and did not pursue it to the end.

Seeing the stupidity of that rhino, I thought about mankind, people. How often do we also believe that we rule, that we decide and no one can challenge our choices. We do it in all areas of life. We break God's commandments thinking there will be no consequences or reprisals. Then after destroying marriages, after losing friends, after suffering devastation for our arrogance, we complain to God or maybe just scream at the universe that life is unfair.

I hope that particular rhino learned his lesson that day. But with people, it seems that there are so few that learn. Even more devastating is when people who claim to be people of faith fail to learn. We believe that God exists, but we fail to embrace the greatest attribute in God. God is love. We think life is about winning, coming out on top, standing there with our foot on the neck of any who oppose us, INCLUDING GOD. But God is love and our God calls us to be people of love. Let me put it stronger: God demands that we love Him and love one another. The greatest of all the commandments are these and do not forget, they are commandments, not suggestions.

In Isaiah, the prophet spends a lot of time wrestling with the relationship between the God of Israel and Israel. Why are God's people suffering? The same question can be asked today. How can it be that people come to Christ only to continue with lives of hunger and thirst, lives of pain and emptiness? In Isaiah 59 God tells us that he is able to forgive if we are willing to change.

"Behold, the LORD'S hand is not so short That it cannot save; Nor is His ear so dull That it cannot hear. But your iniquities have made a separation between you and your God, And your sins have hidden His face from you so that He does not hear." Isaiah 59:1-2.

Something has to change! It is not God who needs to accommodate our choices, but we need purity and goodness, not iniquity and failure. So, in Isaiah 64 we are called to surrender in a way unimaginable to most people, even believers. We are to surrender like clay surrenders to the potter.

"But now, O LORD, You are our Father, We are the clay, and You our potter; And all of us are the work of Your hand." Isaiah 64:8.

It is a call for absolute humility, servitude and surrender. In other words, don't be like that rhino. Know that God rules. Our hope is in total worship. Look up that word in Hebrew or Greek. We bow down, mind, heart and soul. We are the clay.

The beauty of this surrender is in the love of God. This loving God will mold us and make us into that same love but only if we are the clay.

We are the Clay

I watched another short YouTube video the other day. Elephant verses Rhino. I knew the outcome before it began. In fact, every animal of the jungle in the grandstands watching knew how it would end. The elephant that seemed 5 times larger than that rhino, with those two huge tusks was going to teach the rhino a lesson. But rhinos don't seem all that intelligent. For some reason, he thought he would win. Like I said, it was a short video. It was a short battle. Fortunately for the rhino, the elephant was satisfied just in proving the point (literally) and did not pursue it to the end.

Seeing the stupidity of that rhino, I thought about mankind, people. How often do we also believe that we rule, that we decide and no one can challenge our choices. We do it in all areas of life. We break God's commandments thinking there will be no consequences or reprisals. Then after destroying marriages, after losing friends, after suffering devastation for our arrogance, we complain to God or maybe just scream at the universe that life is unfair.

I hope that particular rhino learned his lesson that day. But with people, it seems that there are so few that learn. Even more devastating is when people who claim to be people of faith fail to learn. We believe that God exists, but we fail to embrace the greatest attribute in God. God is love. We think life is about winning, coming out on top, standing there with our foot on the neck of any who oppose us, INCLUDING GOD. But God is love and our God calls us to be people of love. Let me put it stronger: God demands that we love Him and love one another. The greatest of all the commandments are these and do not forget, they are commandments, not suggestions.

In Isaiah, the prophet spends a lot of time wrestling with the relationship between the God of Israel and Israel. Why are God's people suffering? The same question can be asked today. How can it be that people come to Christ only to continue with lives of hunger and thirst, lives of pain and emptiness? In Isaiah 59 God tells us that he is able to forgive if we are willing to change.

"Behold, the LORD'S hand is not so short That it cannot save; Nor is His ear so dull That it cannot hear. But your iniquities have made a separation between you and your God, And your sins have hidden His face from you so that He does not hear." Isaiah 59:1-2.

Something has to change! It is not God who needs to accommodate our choices, but we need purity and goodness, not iniquity and failure. So, in Isaiah 64 we are called to surrender in a way unimaginable to most people, even believers. We are to surrender like clay surrenders to the potter.

"But now, O LORD, You are our Father, We are the clay, and You our potter; And all of us are the work of Your hand." Isaiah 64:8.

It is a call for absolute humility, servitude and surrender. In other words, don't be like that rhino. Know that God rules. Our hope is in total worship. Look up that word in Hebrew or Greek. We bow down, mind, heart and soul. We are the clay.

The beauty of this surrender is in the love of God. This loving God will mold us and make us into that same love but only if we are the clay.

Seeing the stupidity of that rhino, I thought about mankind, people. How often do we also believe that we rule, that we decide and no one can challenge our choices. We do it in all areas of life. We break God's commandments thinking there will be no consequences or reprisals. Then after destroying marriages, after losing friends, after suffering devastation for our arrogance, we complain to God or maybe just scream at the universe that life is unfair.

I hope that particular rhino learned his lesson that day. But with people, it seems that there are so few that learn. Even more devastating is when people who claim to be people of faith fail to learn. We believe that God exists, but we fail to embrace the greatest attribute in God. God is love. We think life is about winning, coming out on top, standing there with our foot on the neck of any who oppose us, INCLUDING GOD. But God is love and our God calls us to be people of love. Let me put it stronger: God demands that we love Him and love one another. The greatest of all the commandments are these and do not forget, they are commandments, not suggestions.

In Isaiah, the prophet spends a lot of time wrestling with the relationship between the God of Israel and Israel. Why are God's people suffering? The same question can be asked today. How can it be that people come to Christ only to continue with lives of hunger and thirst, lives of pain and emptiness? In Isaiah 59 God tells us that he is able to forgive if we are willing to change.

"Behold, the LORD'S hand is not so short That it cannot save; Nor is His ear so dull That it cannot hear. But your iniquities have made a separation between you and your God, And your sins have hidden His face from you so that He does not hear." Isaiah 59:1-2.

Something has to change! It is not God who needs to accommodate our choices, but we need purity and goodness, not iniquity and failure. So, in Isaiah 64 we are called to surrender in a way unimaginable to most people, even believers. We are to surrender like clay surrenders to the potter.

"But now, O LORD, You are our Father, We are the clay, and You our potter; And all of us are the work of Your hand." Isaiah 64:8.

It is a call for absolute humility, servitude and surrender. In other words, don't be like that rhino. Know that God rules. Our hope is in total worship. Look up that word in Hebrew or Greek. We bow down, mind, heart and soul. We are the clay.

The beauty of this surrender is in the love of God. This loving God will mold us and make us into that same love but only if we are the clay.

We are the Clay

I watched another short YouTube video the other day. Elephant verses Rhino. I knew the outcome before it began. In fact, every animal of the jungle in the grandstands watching knew how it would end. The elephant that seemed 5 times larger than that rhino, with those two huge tusks was going to teach the rhino a lesson. But rhinos don't seem all that intelligent. For some reason, he thought he would win. Like I said, it was a short video. It was a short battle. Fortunately for the rhino, the elephant was satisfied just in proving the point (literally) and did not pursue it to the end.

Seeing the stupidity of that rhino, I thought about mankind, people. How often do we also believe that we rule, that we decide and no one can challenge our choices. We do it in all areas of life. Let me put it stronger: God demands that we love Him and love one another. The greatest of all the commandments are these and do not forget, they are commandments, not suggestions.

In Isaiah, the prophet spends a lot of time wrestling with the relationship between the God of Israel and Israel. Why are God's people suffering? The same question can be asked today. How can it be that people come to Christ only to continue with lives of hunger and thirst, lives of pain and emptiness? In Isaiah 59 God tells us that he is able to forgive if we are willing to change.

"Behold, the LORD'S hand is not so short That it cannot save; Nor is His ear so dull That it cannot hear. But your iniquities have made a separation between you and your God, And your sins have hidden His face from you so that He does not hear." Isaiah 59:1-2.

Something has to change! It is not God who needs to accommodate our choices, but we need purity and goodness, not iniquity and failure. So, in Isaiah 64 we are called to surrender in a way unimaginable to most people, even believers. We are to surrender like clay surrenders to the potter.

"But now, O LORD, You are our Father, We are the clay, and You our potter; And all of us are the work of Your hand." Isaiah 64:8.

It is a call for absolute humility, servitude and surrender. In other words, don't be like that rhino. Know that God rules. Our hope is in total worship. Look up that word in Hebrew or Greek. We bow down, mind, heart and soul. We are the clay.

The beauty of this surrender is in the love of God. This loving God will mold us and make us into that same love but only if we are the clay.

We are the Clay

I watched another short YouTube video the other day. Elephant verses Rhino. I knew the outcome before it began. In fact, every animal of the jungle in the grandstands watching knew how it would end. The elephant that seemed 5 times larger than that rhino, with those two huge tusks was going to teach the rhino a lesson. But rhinos don't seem all that intelligent. For some reason, he thought he would win. Like I said, it was a short video. It was a short battle. Fortunately for the rhino, the elephant was satisfied just in proving the point (literally) and did not pursue it to the end.

Seeing the stupidity of that rhino, I thought about mankind, people. How often do we also believe that we rule, that we decide and no one can challenge our choices. We do it in all areas of life. We break God's commandments thinking there will be no consequences or reprisals. Then after destroying marriages, after losing friends, after suffering devastation for our arrogance, we complain to God or maybe just scream at the universe that life is unfair.

I hope that particular rhino learned his lesson that day. But with people, it seems that there are so few that learn. Even more devastating is when people who claim to be people of faith fail to learn. We believe that God exists, but we fail to embrace the greatest attribute in God. God is love. We think life is about winning, coming out on top, standing there with our foot on the neck of any who oppose us, INCLUDING GOD. But God is love and our God calls us to be people of love. Let me put it stronger: God demands that we love Him and love one another. The greatest of all the commandments are these and do not forget, they are commandments, not suggestions.

Something has to change! It is not God who needs to accommodate our choices, but we need purity and goodness, not iniquity and failure. So, in Isaiah 64 we are called to surrender in a way unimaginable to most people, even believers. We are to surrender like clay surrenders to the potter.

"But now, O LORD, You are our Father, We are the clay, and You our potter; And all of us are the work of Your hand." Isaiah 64:8.

It is a call for absolute humility, servitude and surrender. In other words, don't be like that rhino. Know that God rules. Our hope is in total worship. Look up that word in Hebrew or Greek. We bow down, mind, heart and soul. We are the clay.

The beauty of this surrender is in the love of God. This loving God will mold us and make us into that same love but only if we are the clay.

We are the Clay

I watched another short YouTube video the other day. Elephant verses Rhino. I knew the outcome before it began. In fact, every animal of the jungle in the grandstands watching knew how it would end. The elephant that seemed 5 times larger than that rhino, with those two huge tusks was going to teach the rhino a lesson. But rhinos don't seem all that intelligent. For some reason, he thought he would win. Like I said, it was a short video. It was a short battle. Fortunately for the rhino, the elephant was satisfied just in proving the point (literally) and did not pursue it to the end.

Seeing the stupidity of that rhino, I thought about mankind, people. How often do we also believe that we rule, that we decide and no one can challenge our choices. We do it in all areas of life. We break God's commandments thinking there will be no consequences or reprisals. Then after destroying marriages, after losing friends, after suffering devastation for our arrogance, we complain to God or maybe just scream at the universe that life is unfair.

I hope that particular rhino learned his lesson that day. But with people, it seems that there are so few that learn. Even more devastating is when people who claim to be people of faith fail to learn. We believe that God exists, but we fail to embrace the greatest attribute in God. God is love. We think life is about winning, coming out on top, standing there with our foot on the neck of any who oppose us, INCLUDING GOD. But God is love and our God calls us to be people of love. Let me put it stronger: God demands that we love Him and love one another. The greatest of all the commandments are these and do not forget, they are commandments, not suggestions.

In Isaiah, the prophet spends a lot of time wrestling with the relationship between the God of Israel and Israel. Why are God's people suffering? The same question can be asked today. How can it be that people come to Christ only to continue with lives of hunger and thirst, lives of pain and emptiness? In Isaiah 59 God tells us that he is able to forgive if we are willing to change.

"Behold, the LORD'S hand is not so short That it cannot save; Nor is His ear so dull That it cannot hear. But your iniquities have made a separation between you and your God, And your sins have hidden His face from you so that He does not hear." Isaiah 59:1-2.

Something has to change! It is not God who needs to accommodate our choices, but we need purity and goodness, not iniquity and failure. So, in Isaiah 64 we are called to surrender in a way unimaginable to most people, even believers. We are to surrender like clay surrenders to the potter.
